the city and the work of attending the injured began in earnest. As quickly as they were temporarily relieved of pain from burns or other injuries, they were placed on special trains and trolley cars and rushed to the hospitals here.

Only Portions of Bodies.

Several hundred railroad laborers were on the spot within an hour, and at daybreak their number had been increased to a thousand. It was a gruesome task for the railroad men. Not one whole body was found in the wreck. Either an arm or a leg or all four limbs were burned off, the trunk, and in several cases, only portions of the trunks were found. Ten charred bodies were found under one Pullman car. It is the belief of the railroad officials that if the explosion had not occurred there probably would have been no loss of life.

The dead were taken to Boyd's undertaking rooms here, which were transformed into a temporary morgue. Coroner Krouse empannelled a jury, which viewed the bodies this afternoon. He will begin taking testimony to-morrow. The physicians and nurses at the Harrisburg Hospital, assisted by the frustees and members of the Board of Women Managers, have been working incessantly since the first of the injured were taken there at 2:30 o'clock this morning. The hospital is crowded to the doors, and row after row of cots now occupy the wards.

The sidewalks around the building had been crowded since early morning with persons anxious to see the injured. The Only Portions of Bodies.

Throng Visits Scene.

The scene of the wreck was visited by prebably more than 50,000 persons. There were at least 5,000 persons constantly at the place. They came from Lancaster and from all the small town's within fifty miles. The authorities had the situation well in hand, however, and kept the crowds back from the tracks by means of ropes stretched along the telegraph poles. W. B. McCaleb, superintendent of the Philadelphia division, whose offices are in this city, said he was unable as yet to fix any responsibility for the accident. A thorough throstigation, he said, is now being made b yhis men.

OVER 100 KILLED DURING TORNADO

says that twenty per cent. of the wounded will die.

The havoe wrought by the tornado is astonishing. Out of a town that housed 1,000 persons, not more than a score of houses are intact, while two-thirds of the buildings are wrecked. The storn formed south of Olustee, near the Texas line, and took a northeasterly course through a well settled region. At 8 o'clock it was observed by the people of Enyder, but the usual funnel-shaped formation was lacking, and though the roar was plainly heard for some time before the storm broke, many were of the opinion that it was hallstorm. Within a few minutes, the sky suddenly became dark and a terrific downpour of rain began, lasting for several minutes. Then the rain stopped almost as suddenly as it started. For a few moments an ominous calm followed, then the tornado struck, tearing buildings to pieces as though they were made of paper.

Many people who had thought to take advantage of the calm to seek refuge in cellars were caught in the streets and between buildings, where some were Uited high in the air and dashed to the ground, as though hurled from a catapult, while others were struck by flying depris and injured almost beyond recognition. Those who remained in their houses in the path of the tornado fared no better. It swept across all excepting a few blocks in the southeastern corner of the town. Frame structures collapsed like eggshells, burying occupants under the debris, killing, crushing and maiming.

where many cottages stood, none is left, and even the wreckage in great part was carried away.

In a few minutes the tornado was over and the air was filled with shrieks of the injured, mingled with the startled cries of those who had escaped and were seeking lost ones. Within a short time, messengers were dispatched to Mountain Fark, three miles away, where the news was sent by telephone to Hobart, Physicians and nurses were called for; relief trains were made up at Mangum, Hobart, Chickasha and Lawion, and hurried to the scene by the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad.

Two Sessions of the Eastern Conference Held Yesterday.

CLOSE ATTENTION HOLD

Mr. Henry Turner Bailey Interested Even the Laity.

The sessions of the Conference of East-ern Public Education Associations were held yesterday at the usual hours, 10 in the morning, and 8 in the evening, at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Asso-the morning, and 8 in the evening, at the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association. This was done that the teachers of the colored schools of the city might have an opportunity to view the exhibits of the work of pupils in the industrial departments of the Richmond schools, the Hampton Institute, the Miller manual school and various northern schools.

At the morning session Mrs. Dodge, of New York, read a very interesting and practical paper discussing the relation of the day nursery to the school. The paper was devoted chiefly to an exposition from practical experiences in the establishment of day nurseries in the city of New York and in smaller cities. She disclosed in detail the difficulties encountered in making a beginning and prosecuting the work, and told how each was overcome. Following the reading of the paper a sort of query and answer forum was established in which those especially interested in such work work work output of the paper as sort of query and answer forum was established in which those especially interested in such work sought. was established in which those forum was established in such work sought information on specific points. Mrs. Dashiel, of this city, ied in the questioning, desiring to know the approximate cost of opening a day nursery for about forty children. Mrs. Dodge replied that forty children. Mrs. Douge replied that in her judgment the limit of a woman's capacity to properly care for and look after babies is eight, and that as a matter of fact she ought not to undertake to look after more than six. Mrs. Dodge also expressed the hope that a day nur also expressed the nope that a day nut-sery for negro children would soon be established in this city, and commended this method of influencing the race for good by taking it in charge in the forma-tive period.

Miss Mintzer read a paper on "House Miss Mintzer read a paper on "House-hold Science in the Public Schools," in which she made an earnest plea_for the establishment of systematic instruction in the domestic economies, practical cookery and the mastery of the innumerable household problems encountered in daily life. She earnestly urged the elevation of household science to its proper place as a high and honorable, rather than a menial and distasteful oc-cupation.

The Evening Programme.

The evening programme had to be amended somewhat, owing to the absence of Mrs. William M. Ellicott, of Bailimore, who was scheduled to discuss, along with others, various phases of the theme, "Design and Applied Design in the Manual Arts." The conference took one of the topics from to-day's programme, "The Agricultural Arts in Country Schools," and made it the opening address at the evening session. In the absence of Mr. Bishop, who was to have discussed it, Miss Gowans, of the Hampton Institute, substituted him very acceptably. Then followed the discussion of the regular topic, Design in the Manual Arts and Crafts, which was treated in three very interesting addresses. Dr. Talcott Williams opened the discussion in a thoughtful address, in the course of which he deployed the lack of talent for design in this country among the of which he deplored the lack of talent for design in this country among the children and the difficulty of ascertain-ing the period and the conditions under which it might be best stimulated. He commended the talent of the Japaneso for design, and attributed it to their very early training in following models given them.

Mrs. Bissell had a number of specimens of designing in silks, cottons, rugs and wall paper, and as she unrolled them and explained their history, she appeared as she remarked, very much like a drummer showing his samples. Her address was thoroughly interesting, however.

Held Audience Well.

Mr. Henry Turner Bailey, the last speaker, succeeded admirably in holding the attention of his audience until 10:40 o'clock, and was given not only atten-tion, but enthusiasm. He speaks wit an earnestness and enthusiasm which d not fall to catch and hold the hearer' attention, and he has the advantage of .. fine voice. Mr. Balley's address might truly be described as a chalk talk and a good one. He avoided the crudite, tech-nical line into which some of the speakgood one. He avoided the crudite, technical line into which some of the speakers have fallen, and made his address simple and practical. He pleaded for a distinctively American system of designing, and charged with much truth that we were still following ancient ideas with a fidelity that was destructive of originality. Beginning his address with a quotation from Emerson, he quoted that eminent writer and thinker several times very effectively. The elements of beauty in design as he outlined them are proportion, curvature and color. The aim necessary to secure originality was to make the design the adequate and free idea and perfectly appropriate. What he desired to see developed was not mimicry, but an absolutely new and American idea. Taking the picture of an old Roman lamp, he showed by a few lines from the crayon the evolution of the modern chandelier, and pointed out how closely the original had been adhered to through centurles. His crayon illustrations of his theme added greatly to the interest of an address remarkable for its vividness and spontaneity. This closed the day's programme.

Mrs. Barker, the president, then read her annual report. It was a general retiew of the work done for the missionary cause by the Baptist women of the south during the last twelve months, and bright prophecies for their success in the future. The address closed with an earnest appeal to the women of the South to be yet more vigilant in the glorious work of carrying or sending the gospel to the uttermost parts of the world.

world. The Secretary's Report.

A recess was taken for the purpose f introducing all the delegates, one of introducing all the delegates, one to the other, and then Miss Annie W. Armstrong, of Baltimore, the corre-

Armstrong, of Baltimore, the corresponding secretary, submitted her long and interesting annual report.

The report opens with the statement that the union started out on the new year, beginning last May, with the aim "to lengthen cords and strengthen stakes" by raising during the year $60,000 for foreign missions and $50,000 for home missions. Counting the value of the boxes of clothing, etc., sent to the missionaries on the frontier, more than these amounts have been raised.

In addition, the report tells the following interesting story of the establishment during the year of a home for the children and orphans of missionaries.

"The Margaret Home."

"The Margaret Home."

The margaret Home.

The report says:

"It will be remembered that at the annual meeting in Nashville, Tenn., one year ago, through the corresponding secretary, an offer was made by a 'Christian mother' of ten thousand dollars for purchasing and furnishing a home for missionaries' children, and as a temporary 'rest' for missionaries, that the gift was accepted with enthusiasm, and an advisory board appointed with power to receive gift, select name and location.

siff was accepted with enthusiasm, and an advisory board appointed with power to receive gift, select name and location, purchase property, etc.

"The Home and Foreign Boards, Southern Baptist Convention, now hold in trust for the Woman's Missionary Union, auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention, the deed of a most desirable piece of property at Greenvillo, S. C. It includes six acres of land, with extensive lawn, grand old trees, a substantial house, modern in design with all convenieces, and several out buildings, which can be used to good purpose. The cost was ten thousand dollars—the full amount given for purchase of home and furnishing. The property at Greenville was superior to the most sanguine expectations. It was, therefore, deemed wise to invest the entire sum and to hring the matter of furnishing as well as supporting the home before the Woman's Missionary Union, now gathered in annual session. Among numerous advantages which induced location at Greenville, were strong Baptist influence, good public schools, ten scholarships cach in the Greenville Female College and in Furnan University, offered to the children of missionaries. The name 'Margaret' Home for Missionaries' Children was adopted by request of the donor. With deep gratitude, attention is called to an additional gift of five hundred dollars from the same generous source for electric lighting.

"Twice during the year the corresponding secretury has visited Greenville, once in August as chairman of Committee on Location, for inspection of property. At this time a mass meeting was held in First Baptist Church, Dr. A. J. S. Thomas presiding, a local board of twenty-one lady nanagers and an advisory board of five sentlemen were appointed. The second visit was in January, at which time three meetings were held with the local board, which has entered upon its work with great enthusiasm. The property is now rented, its interests carefully guarded, and we trust that the day is not far distant when the Margaret Home for Missionaries' Children wi held with the local board, which hus entered upon its work with great enthus stasm. The property is now rented, its interests carefully guarded, and we trust that the day is not far distant when the Margaret Home for Missionaries' Children will be ready for reception of those who may be committed to its care!"

systematic work among young people, a work that is being pushed by the Union, and concludes with a statement that the outlook for the young people's work, both in young woman's societies and children's bands, is brighter than it has been at any time since the organization of the union, seventeen years ago.

The secretary highly commends the custom of societies in the churches of sending boxes to the familits of frontier missionaries. She says the boxes are often more beneficial than money, and this custom has been largely instrumental in holding Okiathoma and Indian Territory for the Baptists.

During the year ending April 30th there were sent to the frontier missionaries and their families 515 boxes, valued at $41,662.33, and in addition 19 boxes, valued at $41,662.33, and in addition 19 boxes, valued at $41,662.30, were sent to the Sunday school missionaries in the far West.

The interesting report closes as follows: "What is the secret of success?" asked a young man of Chauncey Depow, The reply was: "My boy, there is no secret; it is just dig, dig, dig." The idea seems very applicable, especially along the line of "apportionment," the importance of the carnt with the seed of truth," says Dr. Josish Strong. If those in charge of twoman's Missionary Union work will carry out Mr. Depew's idea—in otherwords, keep at it, keep at it, along the line of apportionment, in course of time we believe Southern Baptist women will come near to the measure of their responsibility in giving, and that God will honor Woman's Missionary Union' by continued calls to larger service,

The report of the treasurer, Miss E. V. Ricker, of Maryland, was then read. This report was one purely of figures, and shows that during the past year the Union raised in cash through its societies scattered all over the South, $35,24.32, and the value of the boxes sent to the frontier was $43,105.33; total, $138,399.55. The cash was disposed of as follows; Paid over to the Foreign Mission Board, $53,678.45; paid over to the Home Mis-The cash was disposed of as follows: Paid over to the Foreign Mission Board, $53,678.45; paid over to the Home Mission Board, $20,008.32; paid over to the Sunday School and Bible Board, $417.55; paid for "Margaret Home." $10,500. The receipts and disbursements for the past year were $26,356.7; larger than for the year previous. In the seventeen years since the Union has been organized, its members have raised for the mission work and properly disbursed the sum of $1,133,597.10, and as there are no salarled officers, the expense of the work has amounted to only about 2½ per cent. of the collections.

The Union then considered the recommendations of the Home Board, which asks that the Baptist women give special attention another year to school work in the mountains and Cuba and to work among the colored people.

At the afternoon session the Union gave consideration to the recommendations of the Foreign Board, and adopted them with slight changes.

The Union will hold two sessions tomorrow, and on Sunday afternoon will hold a big missionary meeting.

Among the ladies attending the meetings of the Union are Mrs. W. S. Leake, and Mrs. H. A. Coleman, of Richmond; Mrs. J. A. Barker and Miss M. L. Cocke, of Virginia, and Mrs. George F. Bagby, of Forto Rico, formerly of Virginia.
